THE. ALLEN.

He is Brought Before Judge Cardono on a Writ of Habeas Corpus-The Crowd in Attendance-The "Bernarnine" Sent Back to the "Tomba."

A crowd much larger and made of very differen elements from that usually to be seen here filled to its utmost capacity yesterday the Supreme Court Chambers, presided over by Judge Cardozo. The Allen on the writ of habeas corpus issu by the Judge on Friday. At a few minutes after eleven o'clock the prisoner was brought into court by two deputy sheriffs. Very many of the court by two deputy sherims. Very many of the crowd had followed him and his custodians of the Tombs. It was a motiey crowd, politicians of larger and smaller fry, reporters, ragamulins, gettemen and roughs, all pushing and josting an huddled together. Certainly the coolest man in the party was the prisoner, and it is certain that fewere dressed better, while his good physical condution showed no great wear and tear of body or min as the result of his imprisonment. Attending his was his comment, exclude Stuart and Mr. John Sedwick.

As soon $\foats$ the Judge announced his readiness to go on with the case Assistant District Attorney Fellows, who represented the proseculion, entered upon a lengthy speech, setting forth the reasons why the prisoner should not be adminded to bail. He first read the papers submitted to Justice Cox, committing magistrate, in which was set forth the allegation that on six occasions the prisoner had lately sworn to being the owner of the St. Bernard Blotch, come of Mercer and Frince screets, sucressed, and that in the same time Mr. Peter W. Langley, his father-many, had four times made a selemi out that he was the owner of the property. In view of these facts he urged that the accusation of perjury must fall on Theodore Allen. As to the question of bail, the other side will doubtless claim it as a constitutional right. But not every one is entitled to bail. This is left, under the genius of our government, to the descretion of the courts. To allow all bail would be letting go unwinped of justice two-thirds of our crimmals. It is no unusual thing to resist the application courts. He referred to deveral cases, instancing among others that of Mrs. Cumingham in the begus baby case. He clatmed that in this city, where violations of the law are so often and flagrant, where crimmals congregate, it was necessary that the courts should be rigid in the exercise of this power even in crimes of less grade than felony. In proof of this legal authorities were cited at considerable length. He next alluded to what he alleged to be his well authorities were cited at considerable length. He next alluded to what he alleged to be his well attorities are distinguished, been clearly shown that Theodore Allen had repeatedly committed perisoner ball. It had, he insisted, been clearly shown that Theodore Allen had repeatedly committed perisoner to push the public of the posting course had offered stone ball. The opposing course had offered stone he had the court to refuse to admit the prisoner to bail.

Mr. Eadgewith his was the croad cl

There was no reason for holding him.

Patiently to the end, without a word of interruption or comment or inquiry, the Judge listened to the speeches of the opposing lawyers. He then announced he would take the papers and reserve his decision. Upon this announcement the prisoner, still accompanied by his dual iriends from the Sheriff's odice, departed for his place of temporary sojourn in that gray granite temple of justice yclept the Tombs. His counsel and the crowd followed.

Paraguay Restive Under Brazilian Tutorship—The Argentine Troubles—The Revolu tion in the Oriental Republic.

The Constituent Assembly of Paraguay comm the Sessions on the 15th of August, and has not, as the Brazilian correspondence laments, been showing itself partial to Brazilian tutorship. On the 31st of August the Assembly removed the only remaining from power, and appointed the President of the Supreme Court, Dom Facundo Machaim. Next day, however, it reversed its work and reappointed Rivola. Minister Stevens arrived at Asuncion on the 25th of August in the United States gunboat Wasp, and presented his credentials the next day. The Paragusyans are greatly pleased with this early recognition of the republic by the United States.

In the Argentine Confederation a government force of 1.200 cavalry and artillery surprised, on the 7th, a force of the insurgents, given at 1.500 men, and defeated it with a loss of sixty killed and wounded and a number of prisoners among whom was the commander, Colonel Dom Juan Luiz Gonzales. from power, and appointed the President of the

On the 11th the vanguard of an insurgent force, under Luengo, made a descent upon the province of Santa Fé, with the intent to revolutionize it. The government forces in the neighborhood attacked it and captured seventy men, including five officers. The remainder of Luengo's command, 200 men, took position in the islands, but the government accounts state that it was watched on both sides of the river by 600 men and it was intended to attack it on the night of the 18th.

The Argentine Congress was passing a bill putting the provinces of Corrientes and Santa Fé in state of siege.

the provinces of Corrientes and Santa Fe in state of siege.

In the Oriental republic an engagement occurred on the 12th, at the Severino ford of the Santa Lucia, between the government forces under Suarez and the insurgents under Medina and Apparicio. The government cavalry fiel at the first charge, but Suarez claims to have defeated the enemy with his infantry and artillery. However, he lost nearly all his baggage and munitions, and he retreated to Piedras, past which the insurgent forces deployed on the 16th, marching on Cerre. He followed, and he claims to have forced them to countermarch and to have inflicted a loss of 180 killed and prisoners upon them.

Notwithstanding this, the insurgents had appeared at Cerro again, and when the Oneida left their partices were seen from Mentevideo and the sound of cannon was heard.

In Montevideo the inhabitants were preparing to defend the fown, and great excitement prevails.

The government had obtained authorization to increase the import duties four per cent, payable in gold.

[Bloomington (October 24) correspondence of the Indianapolis Journal.]

On Friday evening last, October 21, a fine aurora was seen in this place from half-past six to half-past seven o'clock. This morning about daybreak another brilliant display was witnessed by persons whe were so fortunate as to be up at that hour. This eyening the phenomenon was again observed as early as six o'clock. An arch of light, some ten degrees in breadth, rose up from the horizon at a point slightly south of east and passed precisely over the Square of Pegasus. A corresponding arch appeared alse in the west, and at seven o'clock the two nearly met, forming an almost continuous arch. The mysterious connection now known to exist between the number of solar spots and the frequency of auroras has never, perhaps, been more distinctly marked than during the present year. The abundance as well as the magnitude of the spots on the sun's surface have indicated, for some time past, extraordinary agitation of the solar atmosphere. At the same time the frequency of auroral displays has been no less remarkable. The precise nature of the connection between these pnenomena is not yet understood. The fact however, is now generally admitted, Father Hocker and the Roman Church. To the Editor of the Herald;—

The editorial puff of Pather Hecker and the Romish Church, in last Sunday's HERALD, has greatly surprised not a few, as its sentences breathe forth a prejudiced and vindictive spirit, much more befitting the columns of the Freeman's Journal of the Tablet than of the boasted "independent" press. The article was a gross libel on the conscientions convictions of the tens of thousands of Protes tants who patronize your paper and are its constant readers. For my own part, I have preferred the HERALD to any other daily paper, and for years it has been a regular morning visitor in my family; but I think I have rarely, if ever before, perused a "leader" which has pained me so sadly, or which has given expression to a fouler slander. I know somewnat of the estrangement of Pather Hecker, from maternal example and procepts, and of his present status and prospects in the Papal church, and shall certainly decline to pai church, and small certainty decline to consult such an authority in religious matters. The history of this Church for the past 400 years, to go back no further, is a sufficient commentary on its claims, its teachings and its practices. When the art of printing was discovered this "model Church" was sunken in darkness and superstition. the art of printing was discovered this "model Church" was sunken in darkness and superstition. Then the glorious Reformation dawned upon the world; the Bible was translated into various languages, and thousands of copies found their way among the masses; light broke in upon captive minds, and the blessings of a higher civilization and a purer enlightenment were widely seen and felt. But how was this most cheering transformation received on the part of the Romisn Church. Alas I who can estimate the black catalogue of crimes which were perpetrated in the name of religion, for the vindication and spread of its own peculiar tenets, and the overthrow of all who dared to entertain and delend diverse religious sentiments? But I will not specify more particularly here. The columns of Harper's Monthly, fer July, delineate with telling truthfulness the persecutions of the Vaudois, and in the number for November, of the Huguenots, culminating in that barbarous massacre of St. Bartholomew, and the sanguinary deeds of crueity that followed in its train, by which the Romanists sought to build up their own communion on the utter run and extermination of everything Protestant.

I sincerely hope that your columns will be guarded in future from the publication of any article from your corps editorial so obviously painful to a very respectable proportion of your subscribers.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 25, 1870.

A Uniform Text for Sermous. BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 24, 1870.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-I notice in the Herald of yesterday the proposi-tion "that the preachers of the different denomina tions in our city churches should all select one text for their sermons on a particular Sunday and give their views thereupon." You say "this is not a bad idea," and its "a neat idea for the parsons." Now, as it is desirable that there should be as much harmony as possible in the said discourses—that is, desirable for the public good, not for your pleasure—I beg to suggest the text, namely—"The New York HERALD."

KINGSBRIDGE, N. Y., Oct. 25, 1870.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-You propose that on a given day (Sunday) all the clergy preach from the same text. This is a capital suggestion, as it will enable the community to compare their ideas on one subject; but, as it may lead to difference among them as to what text is selected. as the different denominations differ in doctrinal points, the writer (a layman, belonging to no denomination nor church) would propose that they select the following text from St. Luke xvi., part of the 8th verse:—"And the Lord comnended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely." There is nothing sectarian in this. It don't open the question whether "hell is paved with the skulis of children, not a span long," or not; whether wine and crackers are real blood and best or simply wine and crackers, or whether one may be justly punished for the faults of another. Hence an opportunity for a free exposition of opin-lons.

Hence an opportunity for a free exposition of opinions.

The public offices of this city are filled with these unjust stewards, who doubtless think they are doing wisely in robbing the city treasury to fill their own pockets or squander the funds. These creatures would doubtless be pleased to hear or read a sermon justifying them in their rascality. Some clergyman may take it that James' translators had fouled the text to justify their shortcomings; that it really was, "And the Lord censured the unjust steward, because he had done dishonestly." Of this, however, the clergy can judge for themselves.

The Reading of the Scriptures.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-It may be truly said that Catholics, Greek and Roman, as a general rule, do not read the Bible in its entirety as the Bible, and, on the other hand, Protestants and non-Catholics do make a practice—the majority do-to read and consider King James' version of the Old and New Testament. Now I say the read-ling of the Scriptures is of great benefit to the Christian. But who is a Christian? The Catholic Church cays one who has been baptized, believes in Jesus Christ and professes the true doctrine; Protestanism, toned down in Methodism, says he who believes in Jesus Christ; and modern sentimental non-Catholicism calls every good man a Christian. It is true that many good men who have no real belief in God pet live and die moral lives, and are far better, in the sight of men, than many full-fiedged Christians; but, after all, a man, in order to be a Christian, must enter in in the formal way. The ordinance of baptism, which the apostles uniformly administered to the early converts of Christianity, introduces us to Christ and therefore confers grace. Then follows instruction in the fundamental principles of re-ligion, and after that the ordinance of confirmation isgion, and after that the ordinance of confirmation is given. A person, then, who has passed through baptism and confirmation eught at least to have a certain fear of and respect for God. Now that person who has been thus prepared for the Christian warfare, and who wishes to live and die as a Christian, cannot find any spiritual reading so good as the Bible, especially the Now Testament. He has a respect for God—he has a knowledge of God before he opens the holy book, and, therefore, as he reads it is in fear, in awe, knowing that he stands on holy ground. Such a person, then, can get real spiritual nourishment from God's word. On the other side here comes a man—Catholic or superficial Protestant, with King James' version in hand—without any fundamental instruction in religion, full of worldliness, and he sits down in a soft chair, in a shady arbor, on a summer afternoon, to read himself into Christianity. Is that man a fit subject to read God's word? Will he gain in that mood real benefit from a perusal of the Scriptures? Very likely he will turn to Genesis and read about the peopling of the world, the holy adulteries and fornications of the patriarchal Jews or the sins of David, the anathemas against women and wine in Boolesiastes, and at last jump over to the Apocalypee and read all about the "great harlot," and finally close the inspired volume in doubt, in despair, in bewildermen; not knowing the difference between good and evil, nor caring much. Unless you open the Bible as if it were fresh from God's hand, and so read "in fear and trembling," it is the worst and most immoral book that was ever placed in the hands of man. The mere idle and careless rendering of the Scriptures, instead of making saints, makes devils. Catholics do not read the Bible enough, and therefore the true religion that is in them is not generally developed; but non-Catholics—reading the great book with indifference, without preparation—turn the food of life—into-petson, blaspheme the very "Holy of Bo'les," spread infidelity, heathe s given. A person, then, who has passed through

MAKING CRIME ODIOUS.

A Batch of Bullies Judicially Belted-Rough on the Ruffians-Kegiah Hinton, Phil O'Donohue and Other Jersey Criminal Celebrities.

To the roughs, rowdies, rumans and crime hardened classes of Newark and Essex county, N. J. as well as to the community at large, yesterday was a day fraught with interest and importance, from causes the very antipodes of each other. It was it was the occasion when their doom would be declared and the agony of direful expectation be brought to a close; to the latter because examples were made such as in all conscience ought to strike terror into the hearts of the dangerous classes in our midst and prevent a recurrence of many diabolical acts of crime and violence such as have prevailed since the last term of Court. It was sentence day in the Essex County courts, when all the prisoner convicted at the present term of court were arraigned for sentence. The court room was crowded with a motly assemblage of humanity of all sorts, sizes, sexes and conditions. Many were attracted thither out of curiosity, while by far the greater number came there to see stern justice—Jersey justice—meted out to their erring relatives, friends or acquaintances. On the bench sat the courteous and learned presiding law-giver, Judge David A. Depue, and Associate convict placed at the bar for final disposition was KEZIAH HINTON, THE BLOOMFIBLD POISONER. The readers of the HERALD will remember that some eight or ten weeks ago the entire community was startled by the developments in a series o fiendish crimes perpetrated by this negress For over twenty years she was employed in the For over twenty years she was employed in the family of a Bioomfield practising physician, Dr. A. W. McDowell, cared for and treated, as she admitted herself, as one of the family. Her child, too, was cared for and supported by the McDowells. Keziah had never been married, although she had lovers innumerable, and was, in colored phraseology, a "quite likely yalier gai." Last summer she became acquainted with one Jacob Clarke, a most repulsive leoking black from Virginia, and got head over ears in love with him. "Jake" had a very loose reputation, and Mrs. McDowell advised Keziah to have nothing to do with him. For this Keziah developed a most intense hatred towards her protectress, and after setting fire to a handsome barn belonging to the family poisoned the lood and the weil, se that all hands were viced by and company to the family poisoned the lood and the weil, se that all hands poisoned the lood and the well, so that all hands were violently sick, and some of them compelled to go trom home in order to prolong life. Pinally the whole plot was discovered and Keziah and Clark arrested. At first it was thought he was the instigator, but the Grand Jury found otherwise, and indicted her on charges of arson and grand larceny and poisoning, and him for fornication. She was sentenced to serve eight years in the State Prison, while he was fined fourteen dollars and costs. She took the matter quite cooliy.

The next important case disposed of was that of Phil Donoine.

THE NOTORIOUS WIPE BEATER

while he was fined fourteen dollars and costs. She took the matter quite cooily.

The next important case disposed of was that of Phil Donohue.

THE NOTORIOUS WIFE BRATER, of River street. In the midst of the heated term of the present year this character one afterneon, in a drunken fit, assaulted and abused his wife in a manner so that for some time afterwards her life was despaired of. After knocking her down and trampiling her almost to death in his own house he followed her into a neighbor's, threw her on a red hot stove and then hurted her down stairs She was picked up for dead, but lived to raise several hundred dollars to effect his liberation from a felon's cell. He was sentenced once before to the State Prison, but somehow he managed to get his sontence commuted to a fine and county jail, but finally got clear attegether. Yesterday he was doled out three years in the State Prison. It is to be hoped that "the quality of mercy" will not be "strained" this time, and that no matter what influence is brought to bear in this villain's behalf will not avail in a commutation of his sentence.

THE KOHLDRUM HAMMER ASSAULT.

During last summer, one day, in a house in course of erection on the Neck, a carpener and a painter had a failing out about a mere trifle—the changing of some window sashes during the temporary absence of the former. From hot words the carpenter, a young man named Jacob Kohl, came to blows, and dealt the painter, one Michael Drum, a terrific blow with a hammer on the forehead, over the right temple. Drum, as was reported in the Heilald at the time, hay for many days amid life and death, but linaily recovered so as to be able to go about. Kohl was tried and found guilty of felonious assault, the jury, however, recommending him to mercy, in view of what were considered mitigating circumstances. Yesterday he was son to the county jail for six months, less a day. Drum proposes instituting a suit to recover damages, Kohl's father being quite well off.

STREET QUOTATIONS.

Dispensary for Diseases of Thront and Chest.

In your valuable paper of yesterday, October 28, it is mentioned, in the able article under the heading

"The Charities of New York," that the city of New York is taxed $60,000 this year for the support of its lispensaries, and among those as receiving city and

State aid is mentioned "The New York Dispensary

State aid is mentioned "The New York Dispensary for Diseases of the Throat and Chest," This is an error which I beg you kindly to correct, as an act of justice to this dispensary and the benevolent subscribers to its fund. The New York Dispensary for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, with which institution I have been connected, both as trustee and physician in charge, from its very beginning—has never received a dollar aid either from the city or State. It has been and is now supported and has been carried to its present successful condition by the voluntary contributions of benevolent persons, especially by numbers of the trustees, by patients of mine and by Irlends. The gold market was steady, if not strong, in the earlier hours of the day, on account of the scarcity of cash gold, for which borrowers paid a consideration ranging from 3 to 8 per cent per annum. The reduced line of imports and the small specie export of the week-the latter being less than $350,000together with the lower rates for exchange, produced a decline to 111½, at which a few sales were made subsequent to four o'clock. The highest quotation was 111%. The course of the market is shown in the table:-

lent persons, especially by numbers of the trustees, by patients of mine and by Iriends. We shall publish a list of those donors in our next annual report. Finally, I ought to mention that an appropriation of $2,000 for this institution passed last year both branches of the City Council; the order was approved of by the Mayor, and the same entered into the Tax Levy, but was lost at the last moment through the evil influence of some individual determined to deprive the poor of the benefit of this much-needed charity. Its friends, however, came nebly to the rescue, and we hope for better success in our future efforts. Respectfully your servant,
